Editor: Tami Gertzen

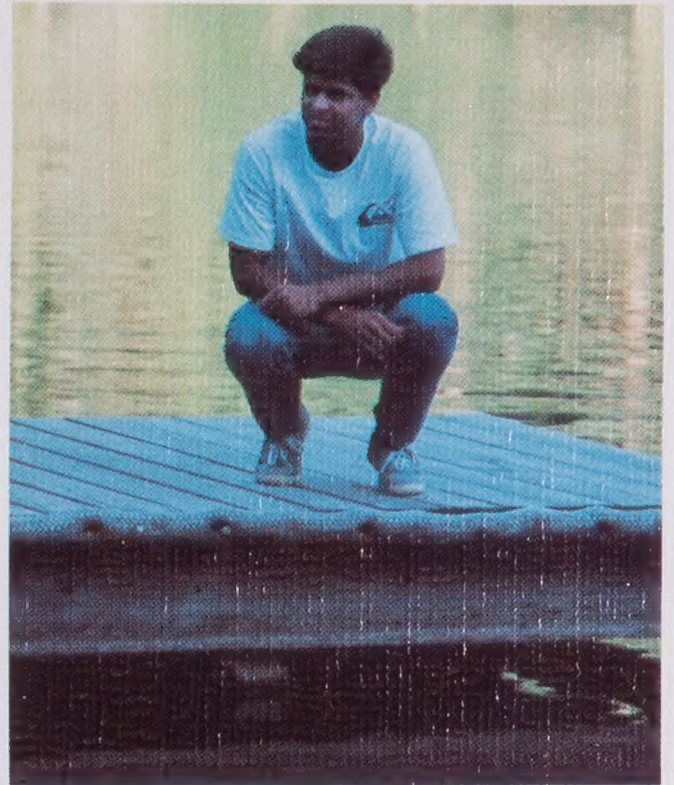

▲ The thrill of being a senior—looking forward to going through Auburn's front doors knowing there's no more homework lurking beyond.

▲ Seniors, Dawn McAdams, Tami Gertzen, and Jim Langei enjoy each others company at Camp Casey.

▲ It was a dark night when Andy Karmy, along with Lawana Mackenzie and Anita Guinn, were invaded by Karl Hare . . . who landed with a plunk in Andy's lap just in time for the picture.

▲ Soaking up a few rays, Debbie Pike and Shellie Nyseth enjoy the seldom-seen sun at Sunset Lake.

▲► What are you thinking, George?!

► A very relaxed Chris Ash kicks back and enjoys the freedom of Camp Casey.

►► Busily talking on the telephone, Lorri Rowe doesn't notice a thing going on around her. Wonder who's on the other end?

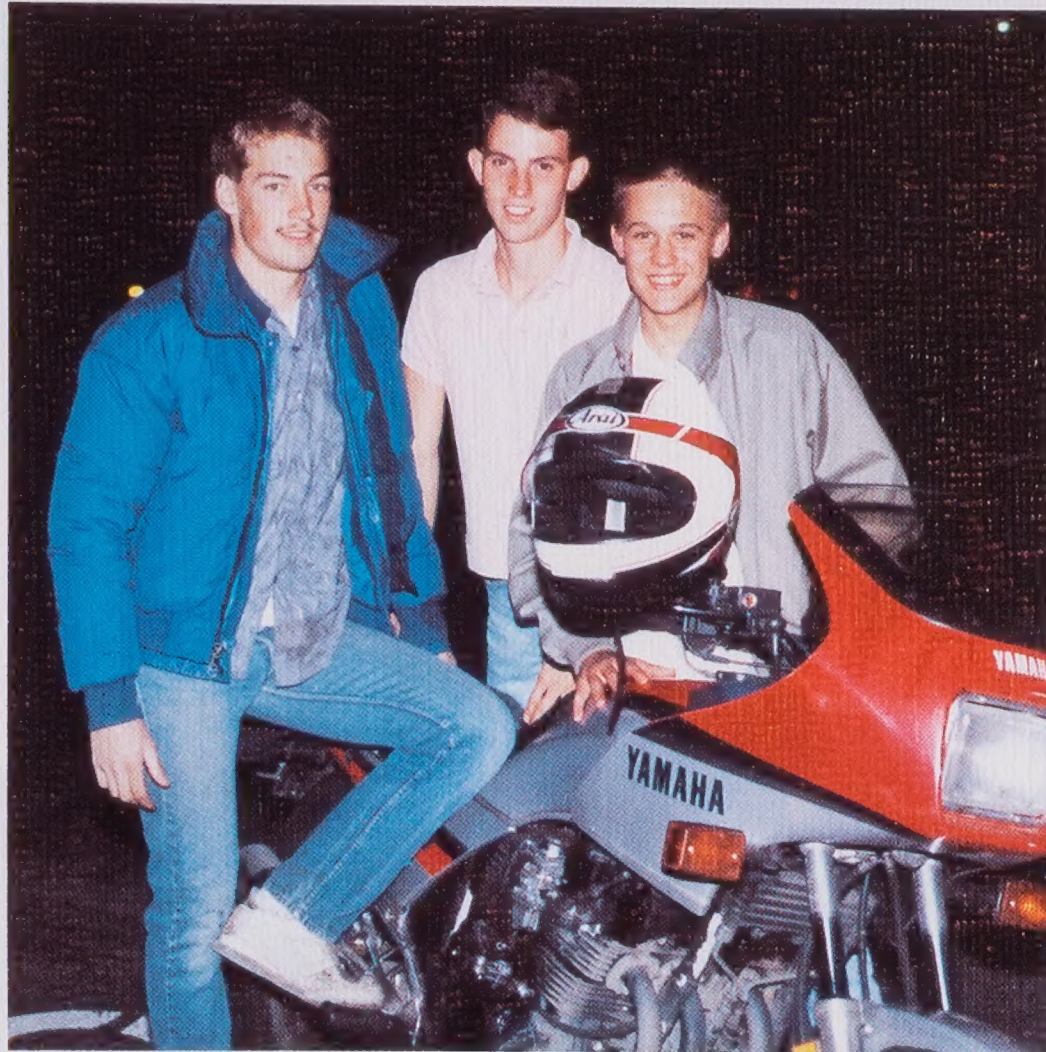

► A moment in time—Erin Myers, Kim Sparks, and Sheri Skievaski are forever caught on Kodak paper.

◀ Not realizing the dial is on 43 instead of 34, Steve Bottomley pulls the lockers from the wall!

▲ Who's the smile for, Stephanie?!

◀ "This isn't staged, we stand like this all the time," claim Sara, Jodi, Kiery and Laura.

▼ Sponsors: Mr. Miller, Mrs. Merry

We actually made it through four years straight at AAA. Our memories are numerous and unforgettable.

As Freshmen, we were scared to death: new school new kids, BIG school BIG kids! Seniors were looked upon with awe. "Not a chance," we thought, "of EVER becoming a senior!"

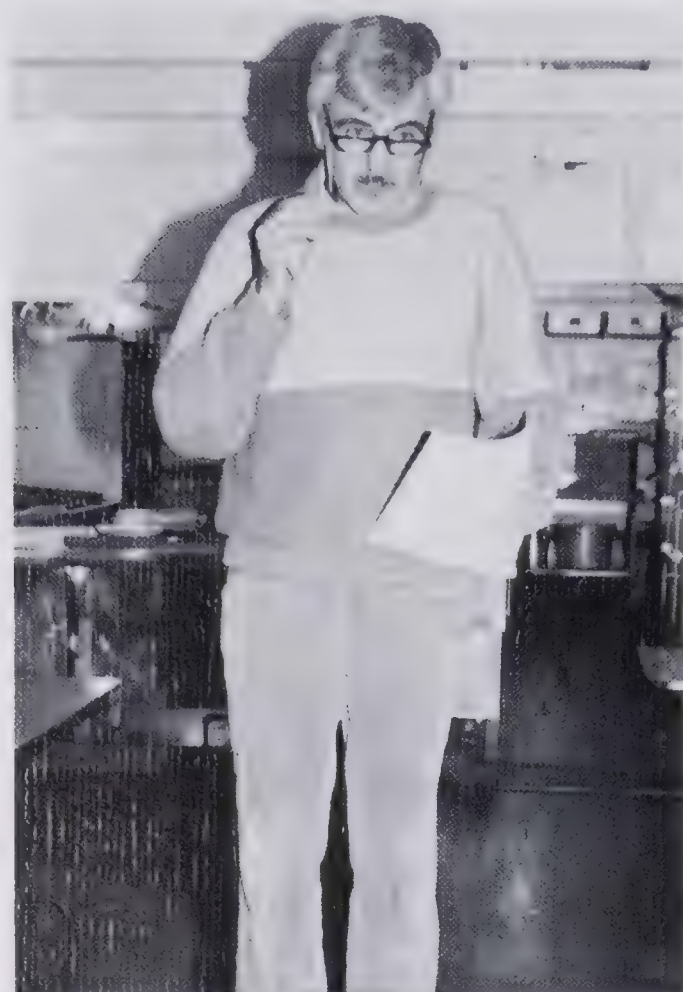

Our Sophomore year was much better we were used to the school, knew our way around; we were confident, yet those Seniors sure still looked impressive.

Our Junior year we were getting a little tired of Auburn. New kids made it different, and classes were harder, but other than that, not much of a change. We practically "owned" the school now— we'd been through just about everything, we innocently thought. Seniors looked a bit younger this year.

Our Senior year finally arrived. Wow! We are actually Seniors! Those people we held in awe just three years ago, we're THEM! Auburn is very familiar by now, but being Seniors had kind of changed things a bit. Nobody to look up to— we're the top! Now we truly "own" the school. Until next year at least.

► Happy seniors, about to embark on their first journey together.

▼ As a senior sponsor, Mr. Priest managed to stay on top of things.

▲ We finally get to see the senior guys the way they REALLY are!
► You what?! . . .

Seniors' Escape to Fort Casey

There was much excitement in the air when the seniors piled onto several buses for their first trip together. About 100 of the 120 seniors loaded up their luggage and toys and were off to the ferry. Shortly after the ferry ride, we arrived at Fort Casey and piled our junk into the old army barracks, ready for anything!

Friday night consisted of different groups exploring the fort and friends walking along the beach. People were busy getting to know each other better.

Mr. Brendel gave us our church service on Sabbath, which was a real blessing to everyone. His talks on relationships were humorous, but he really got the point across. That afternoon, the sun was shining brightly when everyone started off to the fort once more. A giant chain of seniors, arms interlocked, groped around in the dark tunnels looking for places to explore, while others just kicked back on the lawn to soak up the rays.

Later that evening, we all gathered around a huge bonfire near the beach. While everyone huddled close together to keep warm, a few stories were told by Mr. Priest and various students. Eric Risby's story about the pink and purple gorilla was definitely a favorite. Marshmallows were roasted and smores gobbled by the pound—the perfect way to end a perfect day.

Sunday found everyone at the fort one last time for a group picture. It was a restless bunch of seniors who crowded around the tower. Somewhere out there is a park ranger who will never forget Auburn Adventist Academy!

Recognition at Last

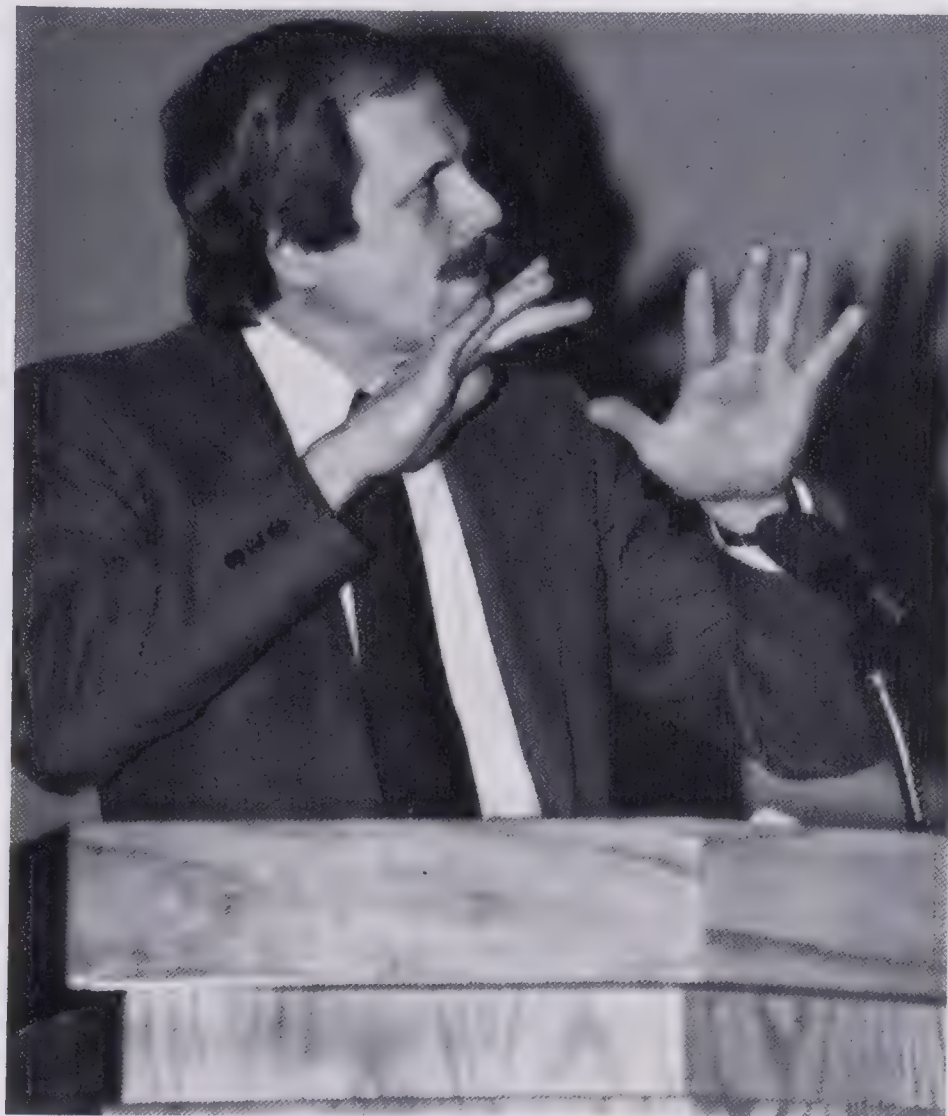

A stepping-stone to graduation. Just one way to remind the Seniors' that already they were halfway there.

The program went off without a hitch while everyone seemed to enjoy the guest speaker, Pastor Ash's talk. He not only gave us a great talk, but he was close to us in a special way; he is the father of one of our seniors. This by itself, makes him unique.

Then there was Mr. Koehn, going through the years when we thought we were big stuff, yet all the time knowing there was one more class ahead of us.

Some sat up there looking back, and some sat up there looking ahead to the future, but all were wondering to themselves, "I wonder what the REAL thing is going to be like?"

◀▲ "Your integrity shapes your destiny", was the topic of Pastor Ash's speech.

◀ The Senior Quartet, Eric Risby, George Pleitez, Ward Sparacio and Andrew McPherson, lifts our hearts with inspirational music.

▲▲ "I'm almost there," thinks Evelyn Carvalho.

▲ Bringing back cherished, old memories, Mr. Koehn holds the Senior class sweatshirt from when they were wise Sophomores!

▲▲ We waited a long time for this . . .

Auburn Academy was on the receiving end of a foreign exchange program this year by having two students from Spain join the Senior Class.

Oscar San Julian comes to us from Pamplona, Spain, and Ignacio Batarria from Neguri, Spain. Both students come from a Catholic background, but find our particular environment not too hard to adjust to.

They both plan on attending college—possibly here in the U.S. Oscar feels being here in America is quite an adventure which they aren't anxious to end, but they do miss being with their own family.

Natcho and Oscar, not only have you benefited from being here, but we also have learned much about your culture as well!

Religious

Activities

Traditionally, the Mountain Outing has been held on the first Sabbath of the school year, but because of rain, our outing was held in two installments this year. The first Sabbath was spent on campus—in the chapel and gym—but by the next weekend, the weather had cleared and we were able to go to Sunset Lake for hikes and supper.

After an afternoon of relaxing by the lake, hiking vigorously on the mountain trails, renewing old friendships or making new ones, we all gathered back at the lake for an inspiring sundown worship with a much closer feeling of "family".

◀ "Lee, what do you think about Einstein's theory of relativity?"

▼ Couldn't go over it—had to go through it!

▲ Wonder if the Coast Guard picks up hitchhikers?

▲▲ There's nothing like a box social!

▲◀ King(s) of the Mountain!!

◀ Elise Daniel spends a quiet moment.

▼ With so much discussion, Tom Allen, sponsor, has a hard time choosing who is first.

AYA—Adventist Youth in Action. The name really explains the purpose of the club. The main goal of the group is to share Christ's love through their own personal lives.

The group often gives skits, Sabbath school programs, visits in nursing homes, other churches, and give a lot of assistance to the Sunset Lake activities.

The AYA generates an active prayer chain. Whenever they get a request, it passes through the links very quickly. Certainly, no one can deny the power of prayer!

▲ Pastor Nelson joins in on the discussion.

◀ Working out the details . . .

▲ Ideas are often plentiful.

▲ Week-of-Prayer speakers with Elder McLean, advisor.
 ► "Working Out Our Own Salvation" was the title of David Springer's talk.

▲ Special music given by Eric Risby, Ward Sparacio, and Andrew McPherson.
 ► Things just got a little too hot for some when the wires in a light shorted out during one of the talks.

- The most important question asked, "Where's Woolley?"
- ▼ Never "Sorry Enough to Quit" stressed Julie Kingsbury in her talk.

Week-of-Prayer has come and gone, but not without leaving behind an important message and an even more important impression on the students.

The talks went well until Tuesday morning when Shelly Nyseth was interrupted by the fire alarm. The ceiling in the chapel had caught fire when some wires shorted out.

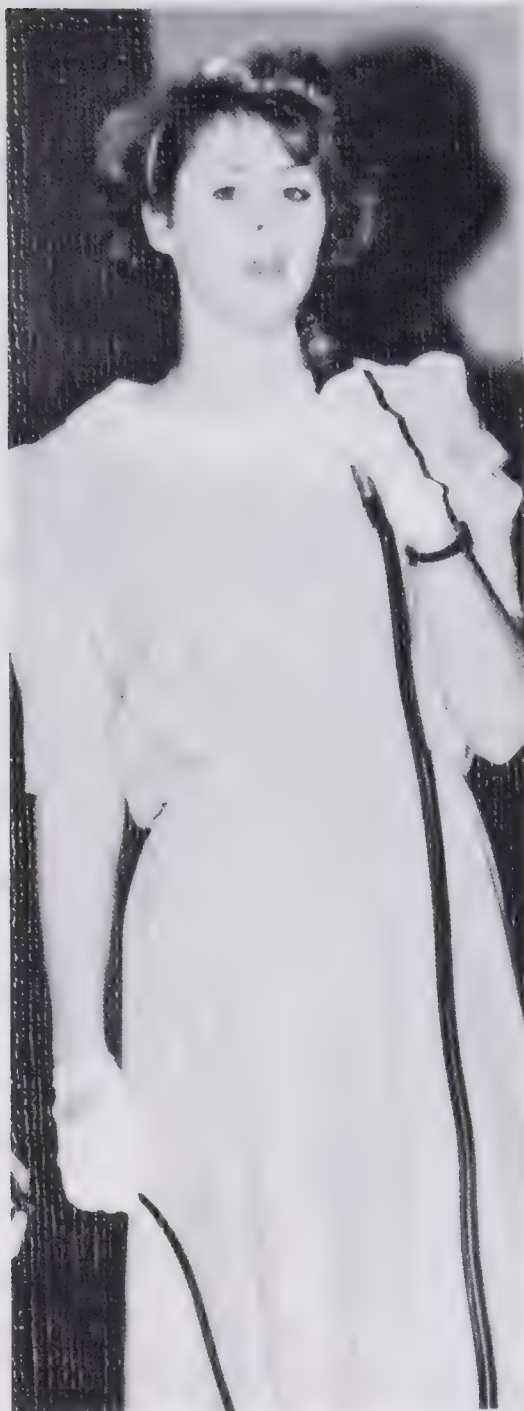

Friday night, Andrew McPherson gave an excellent talk followed by an altar call. More than 99% of the people present went forward to give their lives to Jesus or to just recommit themselves.

▲ Looking poised and confident, Susan Haworth gives her talk on "The Patience of God".

Worship services—what sets our school apart from the rest. It makes us unique in the fact that we are a church sponsored school.

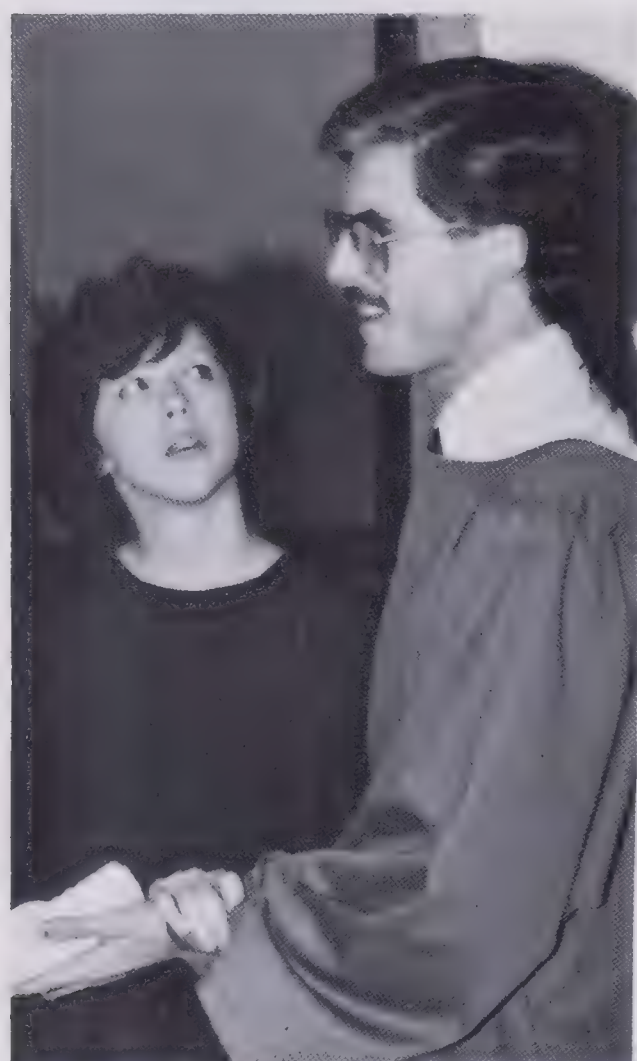

We have several different worship services. One of them is every night at 7:30. This is just to wind up the day and prepare us for study hall. The dean's have also found it's a very good time for them to make their announcements.

On Friday nights you'll find us over at the church for Vespers. Usually during this worship service we have a guest speaker or even faculty give a talk. It's just a relaxing way to begin the Sabbath each week.

◀ Giving Scripture, Jay Lyman helps out with the weekend services.

▼ Leading out in song service are Trisha Jaramio, Cynthia Armstrong and Julie Sanders.

▲ Pastor Nelson baptizing Shelly Lambuth.

► The man behind the scenes, Rich Tyler runs the PA system.

Last but not least, after church—around 3:30 or 4:00 in the afternoon—we have MV in the Dower Chapel. Nobody's really sure why we have it, but it does break the monotony of the afternoon. During this time we usually have a film although this year they've been a little more creative by inviting guest speakers and having different activities where the students actually get involved.

All in all, the worship services have contributed to Auburn Adventist Academy and helped to make the students who they are and who they will be in the future.

Then there's church where Pastor Nelson, new as of this year, gives an interesting sermon which most people seem to enjoy. The best part though, comes at the end. The time when Pastor Nelson sings a song written by himself and plays the piano along with it.

The Southland I Remember

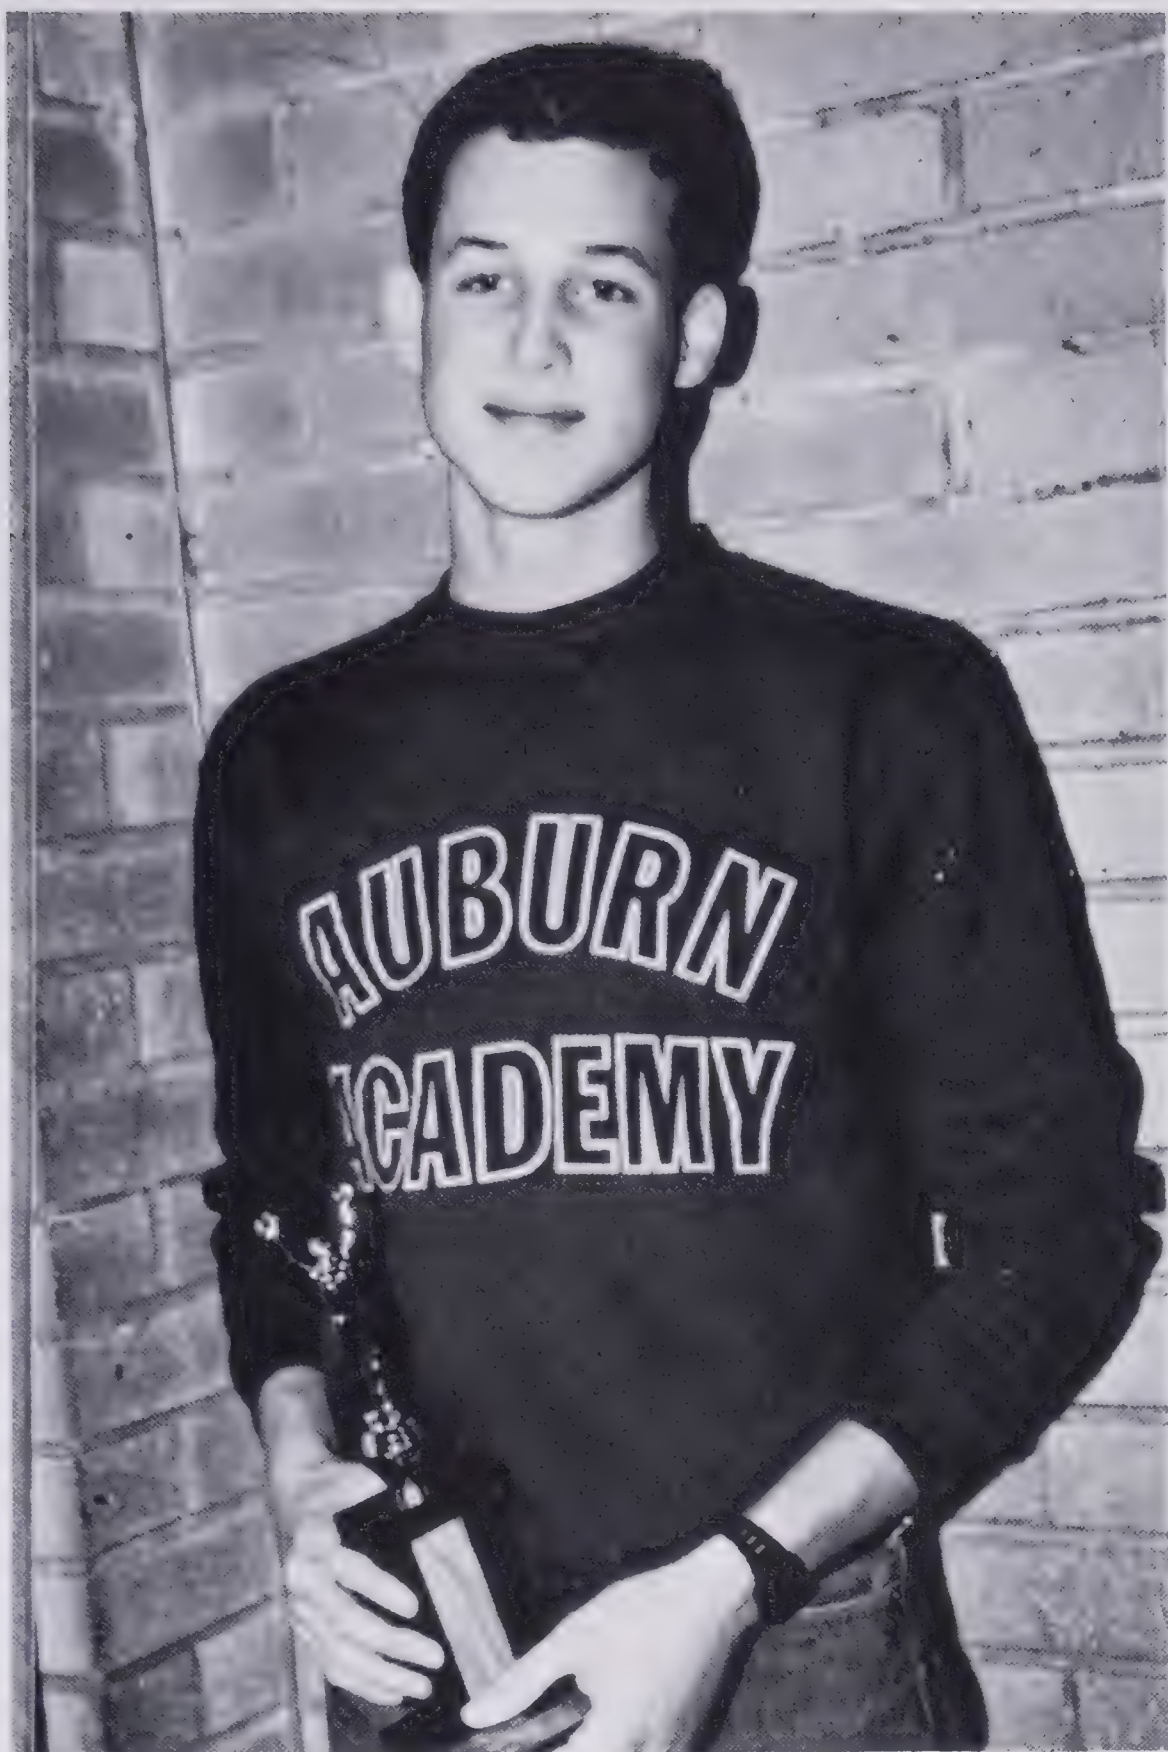

"The Southland I Remember" was the title of the first banquet of the year. Sponsored by the Zetta Kappa Girl's Club, the banquet was a distinguished way to start out the fall season ahead. Entertainment consisted of several vocal pieces by the students. Guest entertainer, Danelle Weber, also contributed to the "good ol' southern feelin'" by performing several "down south" numbers.

Much time was devoted to the decorating of Rudolph Hall which transformed it into a trite southern swampland. The table's centerpieces were made of old boards with sayings such as "NO SWIMMIN'", "NO HUNTIN'", and even "NO KISSIN'" scrawled across them in dripping white paint. The swamp itself was a real highlight in the decorating scene. Surrounded by cattails and snakegrass and a frog or two, a little fisherman was kept busy, waiting for the 'bite of the night'.

Banquet pictures were taken on the porch of a small southern cottage which also served as the stage for performances. Another small attraction was the quaint gravel path to the outhouse which was being occupied by Sylvester the Skunk.

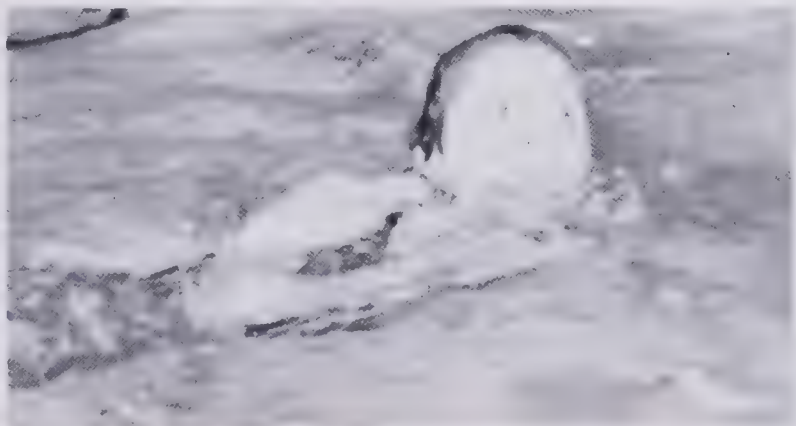

Proceeding to the Dower Chapel, the guests viewed a film entitled "Shenandoah". After this, the gentlemen escorted their dates back to the dorm to end the evening of bliss.

Ironman does it again!

The Iron Man Contest is for the elite. Participants begin with a quarter mile swim, then were out of the pool and off towards their bikes.

Once on the bikes, it was a long eight mile ride through Indian territory where they had to duck an occasional beer bottle or B.B. gun! Then came the final leg of the battle—jogging down Muckleshoot to the bridge, then back UP to the finish line in front of Witzel Hall.

Although there weren't many participants, those who did participate felt good about themselves when they had finished. Lance Mohr was first place winner in the boys' individual division with a total time of 52:20 minutes, followed by Jon Dalrymple with 58:36.

Two records were broken by Shannon Durkos, 71:53 for the girls' individual and George Pleitez, Nick Nordby, and Jim Morin with 46:43 for the boys' team division.

... and there is a friend that sticketh closer than a brother. Proverbs 18:24

Friends ... the importance of friends at Auburn Academy is endless. During our high school years, we are making friends we will keep forever.

The experiences that we share with people here—
good or bad—draw us all into a friendship bind that we will forever cherish. A true friend is someone that you are able to look to and say, "I'm happy to have been able to share a portion of my life with you."

Friends have been defined as people who love, care for, and do not betray your trust; someone who is fun to be around, is easy to talk to (about anything!), and never lets you down.
They always know what you're up to and listen intently to your STUPIDEST plans! They are also known for their wonderful advice in all
"sticky" situations.

A true friend knows all about you and likes you anyway!

'Twas the day of the banquet and all through the dorm every girl was a'scurrying to look better than norm.

Every room was clean done with special care
the guys were coming to open house and soon would be there.

The minutes ticked by just ever so slow,
then all of a sudden
it was time to go!

The gentlemen arrived,
some early, some late,
they strolled through the dorm
each man with his date.

Then off to the cafe
they skipped with a bound,
each looking to see if staff were around.

"Christmas in the Alps"
that was the theme.
There was plenty of ice and snow to be seen.

Once they were seated,
the program began
with Nicole, Kim, and Mindy,
a song they did sing.

And following that three dudes went to sing
a version of "Jingle Bells"
the dean thought was mean!

Then off to a movie
through the cold night they go
"Wonder what we'll see?
The Rocky Horror Picture Show?"

The men brought their dates back home to the dorm,
they wanted a kiss—
for that is the norm.

But the faculty were prowling their faces bright and smug, and the couples had to settle for a quick goodnight hug!

We heard couples exclaim as from each other they did part,
"I love you, dear, truly,
and see ya' in chemistry
tomorrow!"

All American Amateur Hour

"Give me your tired, your poor" was the title on the bulletin for the 1986-87 Casa Loma Amateur Hour. According to most, it was a big success. Thirteen of the fifteen acts that tried out were accepted.

Craig Hammond, our Casa Loma president, gave the opening welcome and introduced his fellow officers. Gary Tetz from Walla Walla College took the "dreaded" job of M.C. Dreaded because it takes a lot of guts to get up in front of a bunch of crazed students, wanting some Saturday night fun.

Eric Risby read a short poem about the Statue of Liberty then the choir, under the direction of Shellie Nyseth sang the theme song "Give me your tired, your poor."

In the program were some really nice instrumental and piano solo's, but only one vocal solo done by Drena Putz. She did so well it brought tears to David Bockman's eyes.

The comedy was outstanding. One of the favorites was "Who's on First" done by Casey Wolverton and David Parkhurst. Another, called "Last Will and Testament" was done by Greg Alekel, Cory Fletcher, Marianne Riter, Sean and Cami Fresk, Lee Booth and Ward Sparacio was a close second.

All in all, it was another great success for Casa Loma.

... faces, faces, faces! Have you ever noticed all the different faces on our campus? So many different types of faces—some sweet, some sour; some happy, some sad; some sane, some insane. All these unique faces are grouped here at AAA for one reason—a Christian education. Each one has its own special place—without them, this school will never be exactly the same!

▲ Caught a big one, didn't you, Kris?
► Third East hall party.

Life in the girl's dorm is a jubilee of friends, trials, and learning experiences. Every subject is discussed, every predicament solved from men to laundry. The laughing, crying, and sharing is all part of the dorming experience.

The good times out-weigh the bad, and the deans and RA's are kept busy keeping things under control. Study hall may be constrictive, but R & R (room restriction) is the worst! Being confined to the same four walls all evening is enough to drive a poor girl crazy!

If you visited the girl's dorm on a typical evening, you would hear shrieks of excitement when mail is received, and snarls over the use of telephones. You might experience fright when seeing some make-up-less faces, and have to deal with such things as worship absences and hall passes.

Welcome to the boy's dorm. A place of equality where everyone is treated as freshmen.

A typical night begins at 7:30. You may feel free to walk around uninterrupted because everybody else is in worship.

At 8:00 the dorm comes alive when worship ends. For the next half-hour you must sneak down the back stairway to see your friends. You're supposed to stay on your own hall.

8:30 is the time you may ask permission to see your friends, if you hadn't been caught sneaking around the night before.

When 9:30 comes along you must go back to the sneaky method of traveling around. You're supposed to be in your own room with NO company!

Suddenly you find yourself engulfed in darkness. You no longer have any electricity. Now people start digging out the flashlights. Sometimes you'll hear agonizing screams from someone who just missed the ending to a good TV program. It's officially bedtime now, but that doesn't necessarily mean anyone's in bed!!

For the 1986-87 school year, AAA's village student population comprised 33% of all student body. Some have attended school together since first grade and now will be finishing together.

Most of our village students live locally in the Auburn Valley and nearby communities—some as far away as Carnation—traveling many miles daily to attend AAA.

A typical day finds them sharing lunches, rides and strong friendships. Many work after school at various jobs in their local communities, and some have on-campus jobs.

What exactly is R.C. Club? R.C.—Remote Control Club—meets every other Sunday after brunch to work on their models, share ideas, and to work out problems together.

Every student has a project to work with and this year, the trend is mostly to work with remote controlled cars instead of the usual airplanes. Earlier this year, they held a show in the cafe.

It seems that only a few people know what R.C. Club is, so why not look into it next year for an interesting and fun experience!

Gymnastics! What do you think of when you hear that word? Boys and girls balancing on platforms? Maybe bodies flinging themselves up into the air to come back down landing as gracefully as possible.

The gymnastics coach, Dave Priest is very skilled at his job of teaching the team to look graceful and not get hurt. Lots of hard work is involved, but the finished product is very satisfying. Just watch the gymnastics team sometime and see what I mean.

Seen alot of little kids running around campus lately? No, freshman aren't getting THAT small yet. So, where do they come from? Well, we are one of the only schools in the union that runs an academy daycare service. It is directed by the O'Days', and they employ students to help them with the children. This facility is very helpful to the faculty members as well as the general public. So, if you are looking for a job for next year and you love kids, go over to the daycare and see if it's a job for you.

The Beall Orchid Company is among the top 5 orchid growers in the U.S., and of the top 10 in the world. The company employs 12 people, 5 of which are students of AAA.

The process of growing an orchid starts in the laboratory by taking orchid pods and breaking them up to get the seed out. The seed then goes into a sterile glass where they are to finish growing. The plants need special care, such as being watered and repotted, in order to grow healthy and beautiful.

The employees are more than happy to answer any of your questions or to help pick out a plant for you. The plants can be carefully packaged and shipped to you as soon as they are ordered.

Although study hall and 10 o'clock check is a priority to an RA's task, the job involves much more. The main characteristic of an RA is that they be responsible and dependable. They should have a suitable attitude and a positive relationship with Christ. They must work well with others, abide by school regulations, be tough when needed, and at the same time be fair.

▲ Sweeping away the day ...
◀◀ ... Hard-working Tracy Runyan contributes to the cleanliness of the cafeteria.

Have you visited Rudolph Hall lately? Maybe you don't know where Rudolph Hall is. That's the good 'ole cafeteria, where we meet daily.

The cafeteria workers deserve credit for the unconventional hours they often work. Perhaps you don't realize that some students must get up early to prepare the food before you eat at 6:15 a.m. These wonderful people are the same folks who clean up after us messy, obnoxious people at dinner. These proud few sacrifice the nightly intramurals to keep our cafeteria clean.

Next time you stop by Rudolph Hall, pause a minute to thank these busy workers for a job well done!

▼ Ted Shannon checks for supplies before beginning a project.

► Darrin Jones spends many hours keeping our Greyhounds in working order.

►► Skill and care contribute to a successful job in the shop for Tim Matthews.

▼► Part of Lesley Vanderhoof's job includes answering the phone.

Have you ever wondered what holds good 'ol Auburn Academy together? Grounds and Maintenance is definitely your answer! Look out your classroom window sometime and see who mows the lawns and basically keeps the campus beautiful.

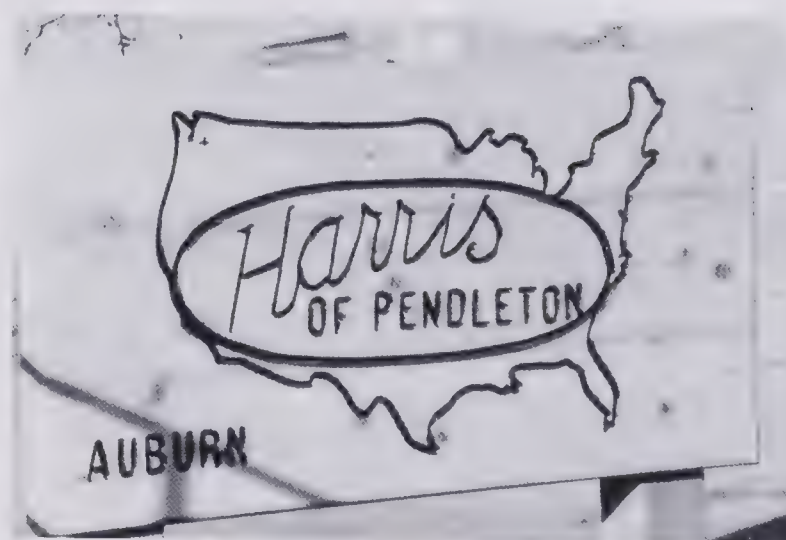

Maybe you've broken your locker by kicking it open when you were late to class. Then one day you tried to open it and realized you couldn't. Maintenance came to the rescue! Then you ended up late to class because you couldn't remember the combination. Let that be a lesson to you.

To all the tour groups and people who go on town trips—How would you like to walk?! Keeping the buses going is a tough job, but someone's gotta do it. Without the "skilled" student mechanics, the buses would break down twice as often.

The workers of these two jobs really take pride in their work. It's a fun job that teaches a lot of very valuable skills.

On December 5, 1986, news of the closing of Harris Pine Mills surprised the entire campus as well as our world-wide church. Harris Pine was founded by Clyde and Dette Harris in Milton, Oregon in 1913, making vegetable crates for truck farmers in the area. It was later expanded and moved to Pendleton in 1939. By 1951, Harris Pine Mills was among the nation's largest producers of unfinished furniture.

Providing student employment was the vision of the company founders, who gave all of the company stock to the General Conference Corporation in 1959. Among the 26 branch facilities in 15 states, 16 were on or near academy campuses and three near colleges. John Bender, manager of the Auburn plant, reports that 60 students worked part time at the local factory, earning money for tuition and related school expenses. By the beginning of second semester, however, over 90% of the former Harris Pine workers had been placed in other jobs either on campus or in newly located openings in the local community.

Harris Pine Mills have certainly made a great contribution to the financial assistance of many young people who have attended our schools across the nation.

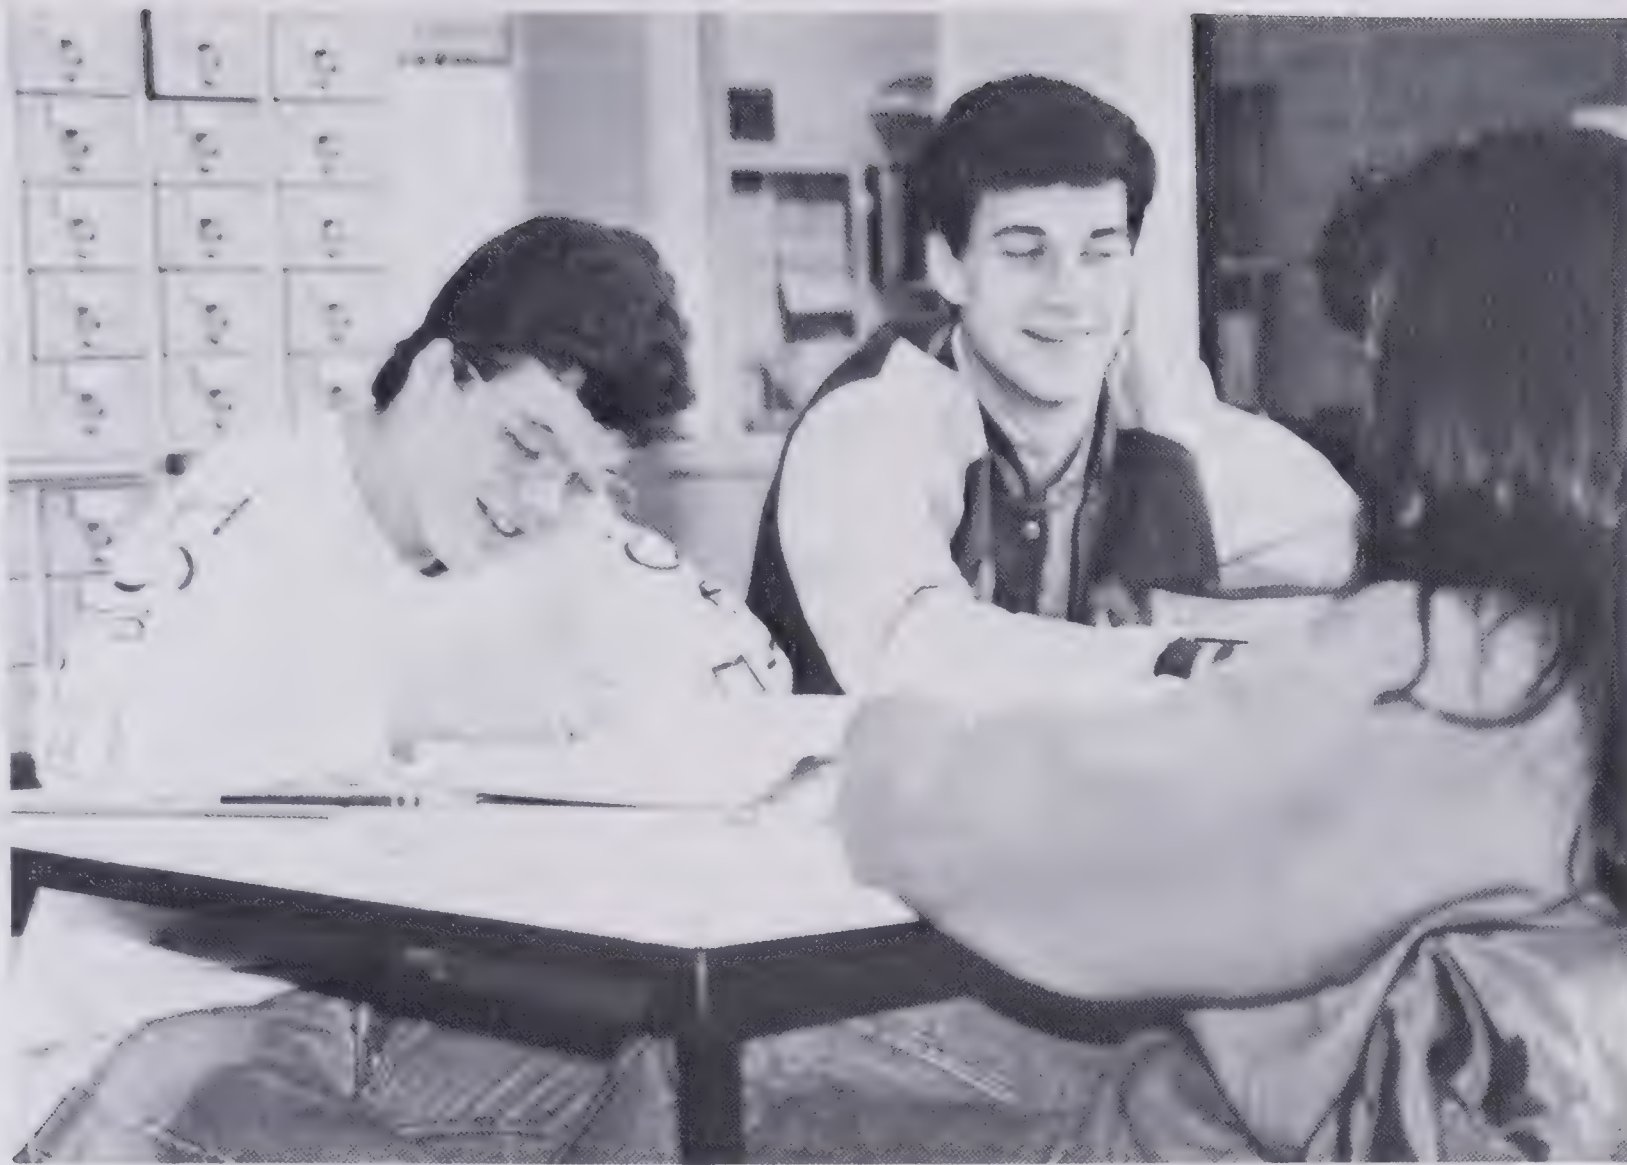

The Lone Ranger and his partner, Hoover. ▲
 Santa's Helper. ►
 It's a job, but somebody's gotta do it. ▼

Our janitors are the people that make our school shine. They faithfully vacuum, and sweep the floors, wash the windows and mirrors, and carry out the garbage. Their work is often taken for granted, but without them, our toilets would flood, our windows and mirrors would grow crusty, and our garbage would turn the school into the Auburn Academy Dump (AAD). So-thank you, janitors!

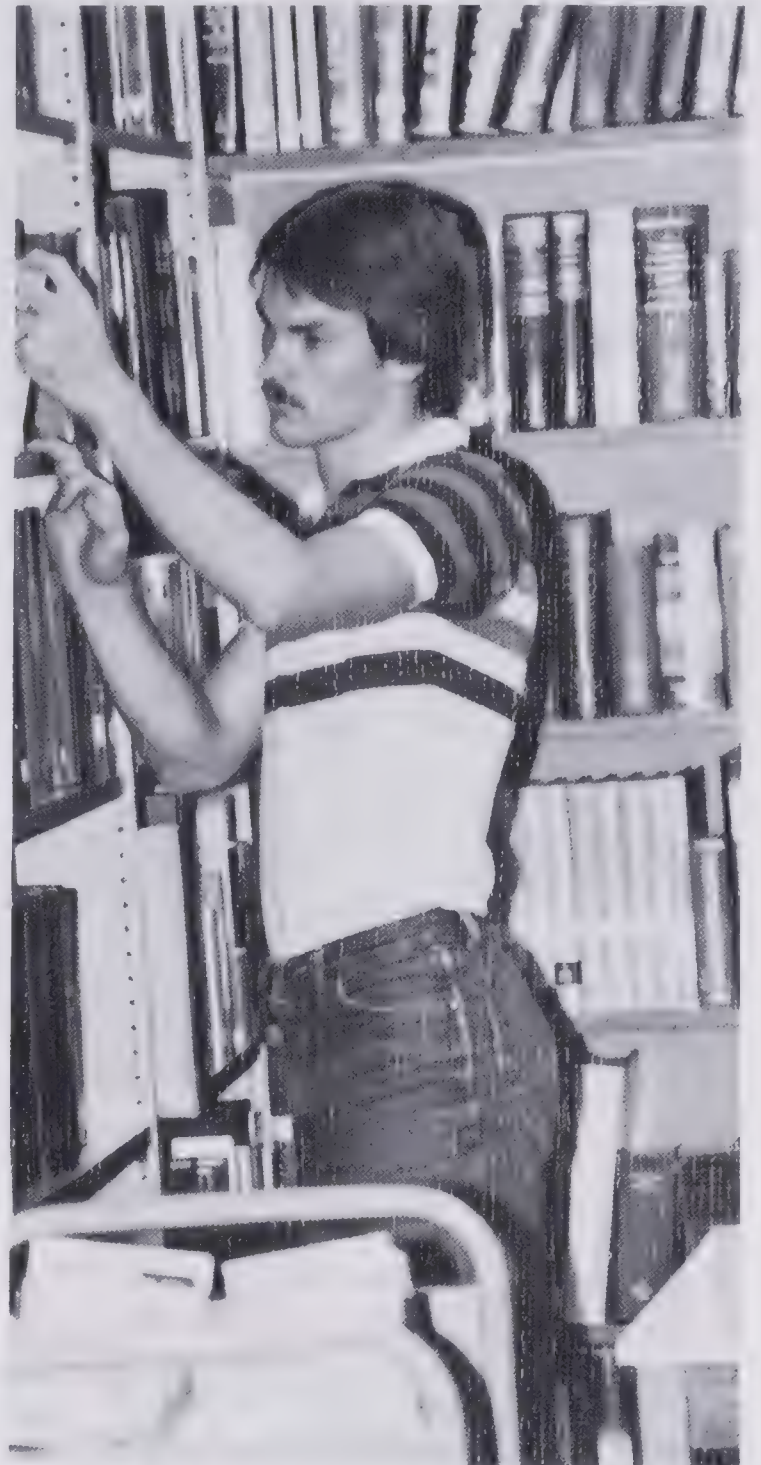

▲ Hey! I can see myself!

◀ Noel Pierce, Kristine Krizan, and Ken Reed-studying hard.

◀▼ Doing the job she "loves" most, Brenda Brownlow tallies up L.R.C. fines.

▼ "I know I stashed my book here somewhere!"
exclaims Jon King.

▲ Taking advantage of precious spare time, Shellie Nyseth does an upcoming bible assignment in the L.R.C.

► "And who said you could take MY picture?!"

The L.R.C., known to the common folk as the Library, has become an increasingly popular place to hang out this year. Due to the scant furniture in the student lounge, many juniors and seniors have chosen to invade the library instead. Mrs. McKey, our new librarian, is doing a good job keeping things in hand despite so many kids. She allows no swinging from the chandeliers, etc . . .

Although the large expanse of books does attract some students, most come to do homework or kill time between classes. So, if you are a freshman in search of the "crowd", come to the L.R.C. and get educated!

▲ Making it all look so easy, Darryl Manullang enters grades into the computer.

▶▲ Answering the phone when the boss is out—just part of a normal working day for Shari Dixon.

◀◀ One of the more relaxed moments in the Attendance Office for Lannise Galbraith.

▲ The girl who "knows it all" when it comes to Nelson Hall—Krissy Meyers.

▶ Yes, even office workers need help once in awhile.

- ▲ Coping with the many breakdowns in the Xerox Room taught Evelyn Carvahlo many valuable lessons in self-control.
- ▲ The friendly face in the Business Office? None other than Troy Harris.
- ◀ Though visited by many friends, Tami Machlan somehow always got her work done to the satisfaction of her employer.

- ▲ A demanding job, Nick Nordby works desk in the boys' dorm.
- ◀ One of the more tedious jobs, Paula Dietrich does the cafeteria's time cards.

Phones, typing, filing, adding. It all is part of keeping an organization running smoothly, and that's what the office workers face everyday. Everything from time cards to computers is involved.

But with all this, most office workers admit they wouldn't give it up if they had the choice.

SEA TAC PAC is a rather new industry on campus. However, it is very active, employing an average of 12 students under the direction of Mr. Glen Rick.

Did you ever wonder who put the pieces into your favorite gameboard box? Well, you can thank the workers of SEA TAC PAC. That's one aspect of their specialty—assembling and packaging products for other companies. Besides gameboards, the company also packages hardware for cabinetry, folds insulators for electronic equipment, and assembles pallets.

◀▲ Using their carpentry skills, Kris Kidwell and Matthew Wergeland assemble pallets at SEA TAC PAC.

▲▲ Kent Beddoe examines the work of a binding machine to make sure it's coming out right.

▲ Threading a bobbin, Cynthia Armstrong prepares to sew a special pin-cushion for a contract at SEA TAC PAC.

It was February 3 and the campus buzzed with anticipation. Governor Booth Gardner was to be on campus to meet with WFIS (Washington Federation of Independent Schools) and give an address on christian education and private schools such as ours.

Although expected to arrive in the early afternoon, because of a delayed flight the governor appeared late to the social hour and banquet held in his honor at our Academy Cafeteria.

The President, Social Vice and spiritual Vice Presidents of ASB, ZK and CL Clubs were invited to the buffet meal. Each had a chance to meet and chat with Gardener.

The governor, along with the members of WFIS, proceeded to the chapel where they were joined by many Seniors to hear the address.

Our Sylvan and two instrument solos entertained the governor and federation before his speech.

We all felt greatly honored that our academy was included in the governor's tour. He is strongly behind private education and it was a privilege to be able to represent not only our school, but many other private schools to him.
